Presented to

Jason Jingshi Li

in recognition of having completed the

Effective Teaching in Higher Education Programme

The Effective Teaching in Higher Education Programme consists of workshops and learning activities which aim to develop the ability to effectively support student learning across a range of higher education teaching and learning contexts (e.g., lectures, small group teaching, labs and practicals, and exercise recitation sessions) and using a range of different tools (e.g., face to face teaching, ICT supported learning, assessment for learning). A central focus of the programme is on monitoring, evaluating and developing upon one's own teaching, using evidence. It consists of six half-day or day-long workshops which are accompanied by reflective learning activities. Those who attend all the workshops and submit the Professional Record assignment are recognised as having completed the programme.
